Director General at the Norwegian Competition Authority

NOEN NØKKELFAKTA

Faglig spisskompetanse på feltet konkurransepolitikk. Ledererfaring som forskningssjef ved SNF og leder stab økonomer i Konkurransetilsynet. Aktiv rolle med å bygge opp miljøer, herunder BECCLE ved NHH/UiB og forskningssenteret Industrial Organization ved NHH. Svært omfattende erfaring som foredragsholder både nasjonalt og internasjonalt, og har utviklet mange av de sentrale kursene (og da særlig på masternivå) ved NHH på konkurranseområdet. Tverrfaglig samarbeid juss-økonomi, både ved arbeidet på BECCLE og gjennom undervisning og forskning/utredning (eks: Læreboken 'Konkurransepolitikk'). Ofte intervjuet i media, og aktiv med innlegg og kronikker. Ekspertvitne i retten en rekke ganger i konkurransesaker, og medlem i konkurranselovutvalg.

Resume of curriculum vitae

Lars Sørsgard is Director General at the Norwegian Competition Authority, and he came from a position as the chief economist at the Norwegian Competition Authority. He was until August 2015 professor at Department of Economics, Norwegian School of Economics, a position he returned to in August 2007 after three years as the chief economist at the Norwegian Competition Authority.

He has been Research Director at Centre for Industrial Organization and Economic Policy at SNF 2000-2002. He was one of the founders of BECCLE – Bergen Center for Competition Law and Economics – and was one of the three in the leader team in BECCLE from its start in 2011. 2013-15 he was the chair of the board at SNF. He has also been in the management of Department of Economics for a long time, for example as a vice chair 2009-13 and a board member after that. Finally, he became the leader of the research center Industrial Organization when it was at NHH in the fall of 2014.

His main research and teaching has been in the areas industrial organization, competitive strategy and competition policy. His teaching has been in courses such as industrial organization, competitive strategy and competition policy on both undergraduate, graduate and doctoral levels. He has published in journals such as RAND Journal of Economics, Economic Journal, European Economic Review, Marketing Science, Journal of Industrial Economics, International Journal of Industrial Organization, Journal of Economics & Management Strategy and Marketing Science. He has applied theory to study industries such as the cement industry, the Nordic power market, the grocery sector in Norway, the ferry market in Scandinavia, the Norwegian airline industry, the Norwegian telecommunication industry and the TV industry. He has also been involved as a consultant for several private and public firms, as well as public authorities.

He has a long experience in competition law and economics. Jointly with law professor Erling Hjelmeng from University of Oslo he is responsible for the master course Competition Law at NHH, in addition to being responsible for the master course Competition Policy (focusing on economic analysis of competition cases). As a chief economist at Konkurransetilsynet 2004-07 he was heavily involved in various cases including § 10 (Article 101), § 11 (Article 102) and § 16 (merger control). Both prior to his job at Konkurransetilsynet and after he returned to NHH in 2007 he has been involved as an economic expert in several competition law cases, including taking part as an expert witness in the court. He is the secretary and treasurer for the Association for Competition Economics (ACE), and he has published numerous articles on competition law and economics in journals such as Journal of Competition Law and Economics, European Competition Journal, World Competition, European Journal of Law and Economics, International Review of Law and Economics and European Law Review.
